

All Recticel insulations are 100% Keymark certified.

No quality, no Keymark

The Keymark is a European quality label that is assigned to producers by recognized, independent experts. What is the difference with the CE-label?

Whoever wishes to launch a product on the European market, should at least comply to the CE-norms. All products basically have this obliged conformity label, the better as well as the less good ones.

But how can you distinguish the high qualitative products? Thrust on a more stringent quality label... as Keymark.

Keymark, a minimum for Recticel Insulation

Recticel Insulation only offers you insulation products of a high quality. But that's quite easy to say. For that reason, we undergo on a yearly basis – and totally voluntary – very strict external quality checks. In this way, we are continuously audited and we have to prove that we deliver quality products at any time. We do this with pleasure. And with success, as we already have the independent and by CEN recognized Keymark label since 2003.

CE? Keymark ?

CE-label

- An obliged conformity label
- Only covers the essential European demands
- No quality label
- No requirements regarding specific production characteristics

Keymark

- An independent, voluntary label
- A strong quality label
- Broad European recognition
- Managed by the European and Belgian certifying organizations

The values of Recticel Insulation

Sustainability : Recticel Insulation respects man and nature. For that reason, we pay attention to the fact that the production and handling of our products occurs at an environment friendly way. On top of that, all our products remain a lifetime. Why would you insulate several times while it can be done only once in a good way?

Quality : Recticel Insulation responds to all strict quality norms and disposes of the necessary certificates. Furthermore, we renew each and every year our “Keymark”, a voluntary initiative by which all declarations on the CE-label are verified by independent, European-wide recognized, external experts. An extra certainty !

Certainty and service : Recticel Insulation has an experience for many years and continuously looks for improvement. Besides that, we offer you a profound advice and the necessary support by a large sales team and a product manager for each insulation segment : pitched and flat roofs, cavity walls, internal lining and floors.

The full technical documentation is available on simple request, but can also be obtained at our website. For more information, browse to www.recticelinsulation.eu .